

Cotton: World Markets and Trade

Strong U.S. Exports Buoyed by China

Note: Jan-Jul shipments for 2020/21 are forecast; Aug-Dec are USDA Export Sales Reporting shipments*

Record U.S. shipments through December are supporting a stronger U.S. export forecast at 15.25 million bales, despite production falling 5.0 million bales from the previous year. China has accounted for almost half of U.S. exports in the first 5 months, with the country's total imports forecast at 10.5 million bales, the highest level in 7 years. Moreover, China's consumption is expected to recover 5.5 million bales from the previous year and reach 38.5 million bales, accounting for more than one-third of world use in 2020/21.

China demand for U.S. cotton has been mostly led by the State Reserve and State-owned Enterprises (SOEs), which have likely accounted for more than three-fourths of total imports of U.S. cotton thus far in 2020/21. Instead of sourcing from Brazil, the primary supplier in the previous 2 marketing years, the State Reserve and the SOEs have returned to the United States likely in part spurred by the Phase One Agreement.

Despite higher U.S. prices relative to Brazil and India (second and third-largest exporters forecast in 2020/21), U.S. sales and shipments to China through December exceeded the previous year by more than 2.3 million bales. These export volumes are notable considering higher exportable supplies for Brazil and India, where both countries have record carryin and Brazil's 2020/21 exports are forecast at a record.

Australia, another significant supplier to China, witnessed exportable supplies decimated by a 2020 drought. Like the United States, Australia is a significant supplier of high-quality cotton to the world's largest importer. In addition, a recent political dispute between it and China has diminished demand for Australian origin and boosted imports of U.S. cotton.

U.S. exports are boosted this month and forecast to be mostly unchanged from the previous year due to a historic pace for shipments and resilient China demand, despite fewer shipments and sales to Vietnam and Bangladesh.

Overview:

The January forecast shows slightly lower beginning stocks, production, and ending stocks. Sharply lower production in the United States, Pakistan, and Mali more than offsets increases in Greece, Australia, and Turkey. Consumption is raised in China and Turkey and lowered in Indonesia, Mexico, and Vietnam because of uneven recovery from impacts of COVID-19. Global trade reflects these changes and is slightly higher on stronger imports for China. The U.S. forecast shows sharply lower production, down 1.0 million bales. Exports are raised on strong shipments to date to China and strengthening sales to other markets; use is lowered but ending stocks are down more than 1.0 million bales. The U.S. season-average farm price is raised 3 cents to 68 cents per pound.

Prices

The A-index and U.S. spot price have continued to climb on tightening U.S. old-crop and new-crop supplies, record U.S. shipments through December, and strengthening global cotton demand. Both have reached the highest levels since April 2019.
